I think the Halo games (excluding the original Halo game) made the jump from consoles to PC in the following way: TimeWarp (1) TimeWarp version 1.0 is the downloadable install of Halo 1 that came with the limited edition edition of the Halo 1 Collector's Edition. That version of Halo 1 is limited to the UK and first launched in 1998. So this is the 1.0 release for Halo on PC. It has been known to work on Windows 3.11. You may also know this as the Halo 1: CE Mod. Halo 1: CE Mod was developed by a company called The Creative Assembly (2). This was their only game for the first five months of the year. This company was founded in October 1997 and was based out of Fermt, California. They were responsible for the "Ravenholm" scenario which appeared in the Halo 1 Anniversary Edition. Halo 1: CE Mod was the first mod for the game to be created and was the first free mod. You could get the mod on the Halo 1: CE website. However, they offered the mod for free download only to users in the UK. RealHaloWorld (1) RealHaloWorld was the mod which allowed us to create maps and mods to play in the Master Chief Collection. It was a beta mod and would start players in a battle between the Covenant and the Skulls. The developers on RealHaloWorld were not affiliated with Bungie Studios and were not connected in any way, but were the core development team and the creator/programmer of this mod. Halo 2 (1) Halo 2 was a full retail game and followed the storyline of Halo: Combat Evolved on Master Chief 3e33713323
