External applications AutoCAD Plugins Autodesk Exchange Apps Performance Though the Windows and Mac versions have similar features, performance and issues can vary significantly. Some customers have observed issues of slowing performance on their computers. Performance improvement is achieved by: using the latest software build from the Software Download Center, removing old software to free up resources and memory, reducing video cards to improve performance. Performance issues can be more noticeable on older computers due to hardware limitations. Hardware The hardware in the Windows version runs very well on Windows 7 64-bit or Windows 8 64-bit. Newer computers with more RAM can improve performance. The hardware in the Mac version runs very well on Mac OS X 10.6 or later. The hardware in the Windows version is not compatible with older versions of macOS. Hardware requirements for the Macintosh version are: MacOS 10.6.x, 2 GB RAM. The hardware in the Linux version works very well on Linux distributions up to Ubuntu 16.04 or later. The hardware in the Windows version is not compatible with older versions of Linux. More particularly, the invention relates to an improved method and apparatus for classifying or separating large-diameter and/or agglomerated particles of feed material. Numerous types of apparatus and methods have been developed for the classification or separation of bulk material into fine and coarse components. Some of these methods are designed for processing wood-based materials, such as sawdust and shredded bark, and others for processing coal-based materials, such as coal. All such methods generally require that the material be fed to a large-diameter drum rotating about a horizontal axis 5b5f913d15

Effect of Plasmodium falciparum infection on the blood volume in Tanzanian children. Blood volume measurements were performed on a population of Tanzanian children. Total body water, haemoglobin, plasma volume and packed cell volume were measured using clinical techniques, and total body potassium was measured by the whole body counting method. These measurements were repeated before and after a malaria episode of about 5 weeks duration, during which Plasmodium falciparum was isolated by light microscopy from the blood. After the episode of infection, the blood volume was less (P less than 0.05) in children with an acute infection than in healthy controls. There was no significant difference in blood volume between children with chronic malaria and controls.Q: Rails 4.2 - redirecting to page with ajax I want to make AJAX call with Javascript onClick, and then in action I want to redirect to the page that I have made in controller. I want to make onClick=something on my tag, so with AJAX I can send it to the page and this page will do the redirect in the controller. I tried something like this:

Cavernous hemangioma is a relatively rare benign vascular tumor that may be found in the liver, spleen, and retroperitoneum. We report a patient with a large cavernous hemangioma of the liver. Computed tomography, magnetic resonance imaging, and angiography showed a hypervascular tumor and partial hepatic cavernous hemangioma. The patient was successfully treated with a surgical resection.Q: How can I change the data type of a field in a document? I have a collection named "Branch". When I run: db.Branch.find({ Branch_name: "Naturell" }) I have two documents in my collection. What I would like to do is to find a document in the collection where Branch_name contains the word "Naturell". Then change the type of a field in this document to be of type boolean. I've tried the following, but it doesn't work: db.Branch.find({ Branch_name: "Naturell" }) Any ideas? A: I don't believe you can do this directly in the mongo shell, but you can use.update() on the document if you want to make the change in the shell. > db.test.find({ "_id" : 1, "X" : 2 } { "_id" : 2, "X" : 4 } > db.test.update({ X : 2 }, { $set : { Y : true } }) > db.test.find({ "_id" : 1, "X"
