TRANSFERS: Target to be named on Tuesday Nathan Ateh and a proposed £6 million move to Fulham are set to be confirmed. The two clubs have agreed a fee for the left back, who will join the Hammers on a three-and-a-half-year contract next week. The E20 transfer is being handled by West Ham's player transfer committee. Nigel Pearson is aiming to sign the Guinea-born player to replace DaMarcus Beasley, who left for QPR this week. Ateh, who would become the sixth signing of the summer for Pearson, has been with Sunderland since a £4m move from Le Havre in July 2008. But he has made only two starts in England, the last of which came in a League Cup tie against Manchester City on September 23.
