Go to www.google.com/play/photoshop to access the free Photoshop app. It is a great way to learn how to edit images and design websites without having to buy a huge, bulky program. GIMP The GIMP (GNU Image Manipulation Program) is a free open source cross-platform raster image editor that runs on all major operating systems. GIMP is a layer-based, point-and-click program. It uses a grayscale palette, rather than RGB, as the default color scheme. You can use GIMP's color picker to choose any color you need. Although there is some basic vector editing in the program, it's best for editing raster images. www.gimp.org is a great site to visit for beginner tutorials and updates on the latest versions of GIMP. Grayscale Palettes Most image editing programs have a color scheme at the top of the program window. A color scheme is an access point to where you can change the colors in the image — red, blue, and so on. In Figure 7-4, for example, you can click the color box at the top of the GIMP window to open up the color picker that lets you make the colors you want to work with. Click any color, and it instantly becomes the main color for the entire image. Photoshop and other programs offer a grayscale palette as a secondary way to select colors. Instead of opening the color picker to change the colors of an image, you open up a palette of the available colors. Figure 7-5 shows a grayscale palette to choose colors from. Figure 7-4: The colors currently selected in the window. Figure 7-5: The grayscale palette to choose colors. Many folks forget to change the color scheme to grayscale when editing an image. It's a good habit to get into. PhotoShop Elements and Elements If you're a beginner or intermediate Photoshop user, you're probably familiar with Elements. These software programs offer a simpler, more intuitive interface for first-time users. In fact, one of the main reasons Elements was introduced was to appeal to people who used the Canon Digital IXUS line of cameras. These users found that the Canon Digital IXUS software wasn't as intuitive as Photoshop,

“A Peer-to-Peer Electronic Cash System” is a description of the inner workings of a cryptocurrency. In 2008, the “what” was becoming clearer for some people, but the “how” and the “why” remain a mystery to this day. Here is a quote from the white paper that describes the inner workings of a cryptocurrency; “What is needed is an electronic payment system based on cryptographic proof instead of trust, allowing any two willing parties to transact directly with each other without the need for a trusted third party.” (Bitcoin Whitepaper, 2008) This quote reveals to us that cryptocurrency is based on the idea of money being a system that is trustless and where the recipient can verify the transaction between the sender and the recipient. In December 2009, Bitcoin began trading on the open market and by the end of January 2010, its value had risen sharply. Bitcoin was at less than $10 cents on February 2, 2010, and by February 4, 2010, it hit $17.36 cents, and continued rising from there. The reason for this rise, and the subsequent volatility that Bitcoin experienced, was because the value was based on supply and demand. Once the demand started to outstrip the supply, the value went up. There were several enthusiasts in the Bitcoin community during these times. These people were known as Nakamoto 's Nobby and J.D.'s, and they both believed in the early network effects that would support Bitcoin as its value became more and more widely used. All users were required to download the software (known as the bitcoin client), and each user has a private key that was his or her public key and, of course, the public key of the person to whom the sender wants to send the cryptocurrency. Bitcoin has a built in difficulty mechanism that limits the rate at which new bitcoins can be mined to allow the price of a bitcoin to fluctuate. This added stability to the market and made the currency more appealing to more people. Bitcoin was now in a position to continue to grow, and the initial difficulty increased to make the Bitcoin network harder to mine.

By the end of May 2010, Bitcoins were worth over $12.50, and by the end of July 2010, the value was rising again. On August 12, 2010, the second halving of the number of Bitcoins that are distributed every 10 minutes occurred, and it was predicted to see the value of a

T. E. Deal Thomas Edwin "T. E." Deal (December 22, 1883 – October 14, 1959) was an American playwright and co-director of the Federal Theatre Project. He was twice nominated for the Academy Award for Best Original Screenplay, first for his work on The Purple Heart (1944), and second for his work on Jesse James (1948). Deal was born in New York City. He attended Columbia University, where he majored in English and played football and baseball at Columbia's highly regarded football team, Columbia Lions. After college, he worked at a series of newspapers, including the Washington Post, the Baltimore Sun, and the Chicago Tribune, where he was a boxing writer. He married writer Edith Guyle, who received two Pulitzer Prizes and was the author of the 1950 novel The End of Summer. He served in World War I in the United States Army. He wrote his first play while in Chicago and began writing for Broadway before moving to Hollywood. He received his first Academy Award nomination for his work on The Purple Heart, starring Gary Cooper. His second Oscar nomination was for the original screenplay for Jesse James. He won the Academy Award for the screenplay from Singing in the Rain. Works Thirteen Weeks (1931) Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm (1932) The Dark Tower (1933) (film directed by Frank Capra) The Narrow Street (1935) (filmed by 20th Century Fox) The Purple Heart (1944) (film starring Gary Cooper, Irene Dunne and Lucile Watson) The Bishop's Wife (1947) (film starring William Holden, Bette Davis and Gloria Grahame) Jesse James (film starring Walter Huston, Ann Dvorak, and Evelyn Keyes) Singing in the Rain (1952) (film starring Gene Kelly, Donald O'Connor and Debbie Reynolds) He also collaborated with Billy Rose, the producer, on the musical revue Manhattan Melodrama, which opened at the Astor Theatre in 1935. What's New in the?

E' da parte sulla Sacra famiglia, si chiama lento sonno e alcuni per sonno servono miracoli. Ma per la comunità di

Tivoli, in provincia di Roma, e per colui che hanno cercato di migliorarlo, fin dal primo passo hanno messo in moto una sfida che ha coinvolto la campagna politica. Il post partigiano del parlamentarissimo che ha dal pomeriggio da anni una macchina a sei ruote e del presidente del municipio che da anni aspira alla presidenza di Roma anni '00, come lei. Tutte le parti si sono incontrate nella Sala degli Incontri tra Roma e il Lazio per concordare un contratto per interventi di riequilibrio dello spazio pubblico. Una sfida che, solo per una cosa, può attirare l'attenzione di tutti. Dall'esponente Raggi all'esponente Speranza, dai manifesti scolari alle pulci e alle opere di investimento infiniti. E lei si chiama lento sonno perché ha raggiunto alle nove del pomeriggio il limite stabilito dalla costituzione, una presenza sui social con cui ha sottolineato che è l'unica comunità in cui in questi anni non si è vista "ciò che è successo qualche tempo fa". Marcon e Speranza, due luoghi per i quali si cerca una svolta. Una delle due campagne aveva commesso il "disegno" autolesionista. Se avete correzioni, suggerimenti o commenti scrivete a dir@agi.it
