"That's a shame, darling." "Meanwhile, you know what I was thinking?" "I was thinking, the picture of us with the Gypsies over it, you know?" "Oh, perhaps you're right." "Perhaps it isn't a tragedy." "Perhaps it's a blessing." "All the same." "All the same." "I like that song

you were singing." "I like that song too." A polypyrrole/CdTe hybrid-nanostructured electrode sensor: construction and electrochemical application. In this paper, a polypyrrole/CdTe hybrid-nanostructured electrode (PPy/CdTe-nsE) has been fabricated and used as a sensitive electrochemical sensor for a variety of sensing targets. In this hybrid-nanostructured electrode, CdTe quantum dots (CdTe QDs) were precisely and densely encapsulated in a polymer matrix of polypyrrole (PPy) as a dispersion phase. CdTe QDs, as a sensitizer, provide an excellent light-harvesting ability, and the highly crystalline PPy matrix could also enhance the electrical properties of CdTe. We further investigated the morphology, composition, thermal stability, and electrochemical performance of the PPy/CdTe-nsE. The result shows that the nanostructure of PPy/CdTe-nsE is formed by combining CdTe QDs and PPy nanosheets, which has a synergistic effect on the fabrication of high-performance electrochemical sensors. The morphology and composition of the nanostructure were determined by scanning electron microscopy (SEM) and x-ray photoelectron spectroscopy (XPS). Thermal stability and electrochemical properties were investigated by the thermogravimetric analysis (TGA), differential thermal analysis
