location and onboard the Titanic II • Detailed puzzles to solve and a great story to enjoy. A screen shot of Kyonko about to explode with excitement. I just got the goods from Japan today... not much but what I've been expecting of late... M&M Minis at a decent price point, a brand new Kyonko PBT mini-gun, I was also lucky enough to get this J-Band at a decent price, and finally, this. Now you may think I'm being too tough on these weapons.... I don't think so, you may be thinking, these are pretty much replicas, but here's the deal, it's got a huge 'Titan Vertex Charging' or 'Vertex-Charger' or something like that as the name implies it charges your weapon, but here's the deal, it's not included in the box, you have to buy it separately, now I already have one of those and I don't see the point of buying it again, now what is important is that it's not cheap, it's a bit pricey, but if it works as advertised, which it should, then it's totally worth the price. I think the good thing about Kyonko is that they take initiative to find ways to improve their products, and this is exactly what they've done to their PBT weapons, they changed the way it's molded, what's cool is that they tweaked this not just for PBT but for MOW, also it's molded with a laser mark, so it's really cool stuff. These are meant to be small and compact to fit anywhere you want, so that's what they've done to it by making it small yet reliable and powerful. I can't wait to try it out... although the first shot should be on a charging station or something to test it out on, but it's just a pity it's not included in the box... The Kyonko club is certainly alive and well here d41b202975

1912 Roger Waterhouse (trader, shipowner), ECT Titanic inquest (two present, one former) and probable family man/father of Cora Waterhouse (his eldest daughter), set in near Lad's Bridge. Whilst on holiday that year he was diagnosed as suffering from cancer, and soon after set in train the events that would prove his family's innocence and lead to their eventual exoneration. This page contains ALL of my comments upon 1912 Roger, his twin brother Lawrence, his daughter Cora, and their involvement in the RMS Titanic's sinking. For this page: See Pre-MLSA 1911 and 1912, below. See also the post on Roger's and Lard's "Charles J Hughes". Roger Waterhouse On the 28th of August 1912, the previously healthy 52-year-old, Roger Waterhouse, died in the London City Morgue from cancer, less than a week after his heir, his wife and daughter. Cora had apparently been suffering from a lung disease for many years, and by 1912, the condition had "developed into cancer of the oesophagus accompanied by obstruction of the cervical part of the trachea which was causing great pain and difficulty”. The information reveals Roger's family; Sister Louisa is mentioned as being a widow who has two children. The sister is referred to as married, and mother of Mr and Mrs “G T” Lucas of 72 Merriman Road, Esher. Curiously, the Lucas's are neighbour to the Waterhouse family in Walton. Lawrence is not mentioned as being widowed or having children. Sisters of Roger and Cora Now, a complete list of the family would have included his three siblings, and they would have lived in different parts of London, ranging from the area near the Edgware Rd/Hinckley Rd junction in St John’s Wood, across the river in Chelsea. It is likely that Roger’s three youngest sisters; Rose, Alice and Myrtle, were living with them, as Lawrence and Inez may have moved from the area to an area that was near to the South London Railway as they were involved in the ship building business. Perhaps it would be also true that Lawrence and Inez were living nearby in the same area as the other adults, as Inez, the wife, died in March 1918,
