Provide direct support to the Pure Analyzer Engine and the Pure Analyzer.Q: Threading a Func Suppose I have a following code: public interface IMemoryComponentManager : IDisposable { void HandleRegistrationStructure(RegistrationStructure structure); } public class MemoryManager : IMemoryComponentManager { public void Dispose() { } public void HandleRegistrationStructure(RegistrationStructure structure) { //implement } } Then I have a list of IMemoryComponentManager and I want to register it as a thread safe. That is I want that I can do something like following: //ThreadA will finish as soon as it starts MemoryComponentManager myMemoryComponentManager = new MemoryManager(); var threads = new List(); Thread[] threadArray = new Thread(4); threadArray[0] = new Thread(new ThreadStart(() => ThreadB.Invoke((IMemoryComponentManager)myMemoryComponentManager))); threadArray[1] = new Thread(new ThreadStart(() => ThreadC.Invoke((IMemoryComponentManager)myMemoryComponentManager))); threadArray[2] = new Thread(new ThreadStart(() => ThreadD.Invoke((IMemoryComponentManager)myMemoryComponentManager))); threadArray[3] = new Thread(new ThreadStart(() => ThreadE.Invoke((IMemoryComponentManager)myMemoryComponentManager))); //Then we end up with threads[0] being completed. Now I want to extend this to an IEnumerable collection that looks like this: var myCollection = new List<>(); myCollection.Add(myMemoryComponentManager); Now when I start a thread like as shown earlier, all the threads that start are getting stuck on myMemoryComponentManager in Thread.Sleep(3000); What am I missing here? A: You just need to cast the invocation in the lambda back to a Func 0cc13bf012
