We assessed the cardiovascular and thromboembolic effects of a new platelet aggregation inhibitor (Ro 43-1654) that shows a marked specificity for the ADP receptor and is irreversible at concentrations that completely inhibit platelet aggregation. In contrast to other agents in this class, Ro 43-1654 (0.1-10 mg/kg) is highly specific and potent in inhibiting platelet aggregation in vitro. Maximal inhibition of platelet aggregation in vitro was produced with 0.1-0.3 mg/kg, which are concentrations that
