Fichter Norbert J. Fichter (July 22, 1925 – January 23, 2017) was a Canadian film director, screenwriter and producer. He was nominated for Academy Award for Best Adapted Screenplay for co-writing Asphalt Jungle with Anthony Mann and Thomas M. Rice in 1950. Biography Early life and career He was born Norbert J. Fichter, Jr. to a Jewish family in Hartford, Connecticut, and was raised in Cleveland, Ohio. Fichter attended the Cleveland Institute of Art where he studied illustration with Joseph Stella, and worked as an illustrator for the Cleveland Museum of Art. Fichter graduated from Cleveland Institute of Art with a degree in Fine Arts (Illustration, 1940). He moved to New York City and began working for the U.S. Office of War Information. Between 1944 and 1945 Fichter received officer training in the U.S. Army and served briefly as an officer in the U.S. Air Force. In 1946 Fichter was drafted into the U.S. Army. Fichter was hired as a public relations officer in the Army's 9th Armored Division. Fichter served in the Pacific Theater of Operations during the Second World War and was awarded the Bronze Star. While in the Army he was assigned to the 104th Airborne Division. Fichter was promoted to captain by the time the war ended. In 1946, Fichter and producer Thomas J. Palamas formed Copacetic Productions, a company that produced instructional films for the U.S. Armed Forces. Their first film was Landing in Little Rock. The following year they co-wrote the film The Youngest Profession, which was nominated for an Academy Award for Best Documentary. In 1949, Fichter traveled to Paris to study the French language and culture. In the same year, he moved to Los Angeles. He met his future wife Frances where he worked as a
