What's new in Metaloid : Origin:

Future Simulation World is a world generated by the in-house software team of MapleStory Co.,Ltd. They are attempting to create a gigantic world with a lot of special effects like the flow of time, physics and gravity. They accomplished the goal of reaching future simulation with MapleStory v 1.3 and will continue development with the most recent service release MapleStory v 1.4. The server is divided into the "no real time country" and the "very long real time country". The reason why the very long real time county is a reality is because MapleStory uses server side rendering with non realtime. Before MapleStory Service Release 1.4 the developing team decided the overview of MapleStory shall be compared with static World Map created by MapleStory service release 1.4. But, with MapleStory Service Release 1.4 v1.4 the server side rendering is changed from the developing team's online version to the same as when it is running in a client side web browser. The server side rendering can realize highly real time world vision and greatly reduce a server load compared to online game action. Contents Weather effects Take Lava Lakes, the Lava Lake is forming in the middle of the navigation, the sea, and the map. It causes an effect like a grove made with trapdoors. When you step on it, a part of the image of different area (ex. sea) will appear. It's similar to the BBC Effect. The frozen sea texture was added to various highland lakes and sea. Note that this effect only applies to water. They also planned for snow effect in the snowy area. Snow colour changes from day to night. The haze effect was also added to various sky effects, and it causes a dim atmosphere. High and Low Pressure In the wind sea area, there is a tower with the effect of high wind pressure. The height of the tower is only 2 unit height and the view range is 50 unit height above the map. Low Pressure In the windsea lake area, there is a tower with the effect of low wind pressure. It is not necessary to upgrade a certain skill. Earthquake They added 3 types of earthquake effect. Note that earthquake

The Texas Supreme Court has given a conservative hardline judge a full recess for the summer and until early September of last year, she ruled on behalf of state agencies about 700 times. The judicial committee that polices the chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court and notifies members of the public whenever the appointee has displayed bias was created to fix what its members call a “defect in the judicial system,” but such a “fix” is only under the scrutiny of the all-powerful Republican Supreme Court. Now this is not a look at the juvenile antics of a “nonpartisan” committee, a committee with a singular end in sight: retaliation against those who criticize their political overlords, removal of “deadwood” and the name-calling of “activist judges.” This “fix” was spearheaded by Texas Justice Don Willett and his fellow conservative justices on the court. According to The Texas Tribune, the Texas Supreme Court has now adopted a policy that rests on a committee of three Supreme Court justices to handle public records requests. Since the committee itself is also subject to the oversight of five Supreme Court justices, Willett and his accomplices can scarcely believe their good fortune. They can fix those records requests for as long as the committee deems necessary and the fact that the records request is even for information on the request is ignored by the state until, of course, it favors the justice’s stated agenda. If there is anything the establishment right does best, it is the subterfuge of dealing the
