I have answered a question. (See my profile). The question I answered has got an answer (Accepted). However, I want to know what I could have done to get my answer accepted? Please provide examples. (Or links). A: Links to the pages explaining the process of asking and answering questions: Ask a Question Answering questions Should a question be deleted? How do I write a good answer? The timeline of the question and answer is a long story. That timeline is listed on the question page and "timeline" on the question's page. Without going into detail, here's a short timeline: User1 asks question2, which is answered by user3. User4 upvotes user3's answer. User3 gets some reputation from a vote reversal. User3 edits the question to say something that turns off users who read question2. User4 upvotes User3's edit, thinking that question2 was edited. User3 sends an email asking if the edit is okay. Someone edits the question to say something that turns off users who read question2. Someone else edits the question to say something that turns off users who read question2. User3 sends an email saying he doesn't understand why the question is closed. Someone reads the comment that shuts down the discussion and closes the question. User3 sends an email saying that he still wants the question to be reopened. Someone sends the reopen notice email to SE's staff. The reopen notice appears in the FAO. Someone sends a comment to the comment author, saying that he is going to delete the comment. A staff member deletes the comment author's comment. SE tells user3 that the question is reopened. User3 confirms the change in the timeline. Posting a valid answer is one of the ways to earn reputation. The goal of a Q&A site is to give answers, not get reputation.

Involvement of STAT2 and IKKgamma in the inflammatory response in patients with Behcet's disease. The basis for the increased susceptibility to development of inflammatory lesions in Behcet's disease is not known. We studied the possible role of STAT2 and the IKKgamma subunit of the IKK complex in this disease. We found a reduced expression of IL-4Ralpha and a higher expression of the inhibitory subunit IL-4Rbeta in peripheral blood mononuclear cells (PBMC) of patients with Behcet's disease, as compared with PBMC of healthy controls. We also found, in patients with Behcet's disease, a lower production of IL-12 by TLR-activated PBMC, as compared with PBMC of healthy controls. This alteration was associated with a reduced expression of IL-12p40 and p35, and a higher expression of the inhibitory subunit IL-12Rbeta2. These results suggest that, in Behcet's disease, a constitutive activation of STAT2 and IKKgamma in TLR-activated PBMC leads to inhibition of IL-12 production. These findings may explain the abnormal Th1/Th2 balance present in this disease.. We can't really know if her father is truly her father, for example, because we don't know what became of her mother after the plane crash. We don't know where the survivors ended up and whether they might have been reunited; we don't know how Helen has changed as a result of the experience; and we don't know what the extent of her lost memory is, whether she can remember an accident long enough to have drawn an attachment to the man who rescued her and tried to save her at a cost to his own health (which we'll come e79caf774b
